As part of an historical preservation project, an outcome of the Pahokee Charter, the Old High School Committee is seeking the names of those who sought shelter from the 1926 hurricane in the Old Pahokee High School building. The building has had just been completed that year and is an historical link to that time in the history of the Glades.

If you have information, please contact Judy Gallo at 924-7469.

Three Belle Glade Commission seats open tomorrow

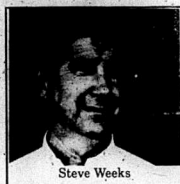

By Brenda Bunting

Editor

Qualifying opens tomorrow for three open seats on the Belle Glade City Commission. Seat C, currently held by J. Stephen Weeks; Seat D, held by Rodney Clay Connell; and Seat E, held by Crate "Happy" Tucker. All are for two year terms.

Mr. Weeks, who has been the mayor for the city for his past two terms, said he plans to run again. Mr. Connell, currently the treasurer for the commission, said he also plans to campaign for his second term in office. Happy Tucker could not be reached for comment.

Mr. Weeks, 52, will be running for his fourth consecutive term in office.

Steve Weeks

"I enjoy what I'm doing," he said. "We've got a lot of things going on that I'd like to see finished."

He said the city has been working to develop an industrial park next to the airport. They also have plans for further development of the marina by changing the current lock-system to flood gates and they are working with the Economic Development Board to bring hotels to the area.

"I'd like to stay and work on these things," he said.

Mr. Connell, 33, says he is proud of what the commission has accomplished and believes the members have worked well together for the past two years.

"We have strived to bring businesses to the city with the help of the Palm Beach County Economic Development Board," he said.

GYDC, a program for youth age 11 to 18, was one of six after-school programs cut at a June 28 hearing. The other 10 percent of the GYDC funding came through the Western Palm Beach County Mental Health Clinic.

Travarus and several other kids in the program attended the hearing at Children's Services Council last month with their director, Linda Gray. The Children's Council has decided to direct its funding to children under 12. That leaves GYDC high and dry.

Ms. Gray gets emotional when she talks about the program closing. "The kids are here waiting for me each morning to open the doors and I have to practically make them go home at night," she said. "Some of them call me mom."

"I have a lot of kids who come here who say they're here to stay out of trouble. They're safe here, they have fun here, they learn things here and they make a lot of friends here," she says.

Ms. Gray said a high percentage of the kids who come each day to GYDC are latchkey kids. The center serves an average of 120 children weekly. Most of them are minorities, African-Americans, Haitians, and Hispanic children. All totaled, Ms. Gray said over 570 kids use the program each year, never all at the same time.

Each day during the summer months the kids are given a free lunch through the Summer Lunch Program. Once a month they have a big cake for all the kids who have birthdays during that month. "A lot of these kids have never had a birthday cake," noted Ms. Gray.

In addition to the fun things, such as television, checkers, painting projects and games, the students learn about HIV through an HIV 104 course which is taught every month. The walls are lined with certificates of completion for the course. They also have speakers from the Red Cross, Planned Parenthood and the police department.

One of their most ambitious projects was painting the 54-foot mural on the outside of the Belle Glade Municipal Library. The mural drew praise from city officials and community leaders.

Belle Glade Police Chief Michael Miller (was one of many local people who express their dismay at the closing of GYDC.

"We have seen a drop in day-time crime due to programs such as this," he said. He also noted such programs as Cities in Schools, the Truancy Interdiction Program and the new Community Policing Program have also helped.

"It gives the youngsters something to do to occupy their time," he said.

Belle Glade's Mayor, Steve Weeks said, "Oh, gosh, I hate to see it close. Some of these kids are extremely talented. With just a little encouragement, they could go far. Now, there will be a lot of teens out on the streets with nothing to do," he said.

Eric Patterson, an 18-year-old peer counselor for GYDC who has been coming to the center for over two years summed it up.

He said, "If the program closes, I feel sorry for a lot of the children. They'll be getting into trouble. There's nothing

GYDC to close in September

Travarus Johnson used to like to fight, and he fought a lot.

Two years ago he says he got detention at school almost every day for fighting and acting up. Today, he says all that's behind him and he has other things on his mind. Things like drawing, painting, and taking trips with the other kids who go to the Glades Youth Discovery Center. Travarus has missed very few days attending GYDC for the past year. He likes to get there early and stay late.

Travarus is also a peer counselor at GYDC, a job he takes seriously and one that gives him a sense of pride. He has turned things around, and last year, as a fifth grader at Lake Shore Middle School, he won numerous awards, including several for good behavior.

Now, Travarus says he's mad, and sad. "I'm mad 'cause they're fixin' to close GYDC down," he said. "And, I'm sad 'cause now I'll just sit around the house." The house is a small apartment Travarus shares with eight other siblings and his mom.

After being in existence for four years, the Glades Youth Discovery Center program on Main Street, Belle Glade lost its funding last month. Ninety percent of its funding was through the Children's Services Council, an organization which is funded in the county with $17 million in taxpayer dollars.

GYDC, a program for youth age 11 to 18, was one of six after-school programs cut at a June 28 hearing. The other 10 percent of the GYDC funding came through the Western Palm Beach County Mental Health Clinic.

Travarus and several other kids in the program attended the hearing at Children's Services Council last month with their director, Linda Gray. The Children's Council has decided to direct its funding to children under 12. That leaves GYDC high and dry.

Code Enforcement Board to begin issuing citations

In an effort to help the citizens of Belle Glade maintain their property values as well as clean up the city, Belle Glade Code Enforcement will be issuing warnings and citations beginning immediately for violations of ordinances.

Director of Public Services Gene Simmons said the intent of the warnings and citations is not to create a hardship on those citizens who are in violation of ordinances, but to spur compliance in a timely manner. The process will occur as follows:

1. Warnings will be issued for high weeds and grass, illegal dumping, illegal discharge of sewage, etc. A time period will be given to correct the violations.

2. If the violations are not corrected within the specified time period, there will be a fine of $100 for the first offense, $500 for second offenses, and $500 for third offenses.

3. Failure to pay the fine or to request a hearing through the county court system within 10 days will constitute a waiver of rights and a judgement may be entered against the violator up to $500 per infraction.

4. All contested cases will be held at the Palm Beach County Courthouse.

5. Fines can only be paid at the office of the Clerk of the Court at the Palm Beach County Courthouse.

"The city feels that the warning and citation process will greatly increase the response time for correcting violations and help maintain property values by eliminating eyesores," said Mr. Simmons.

1995 hurricane season is living up to experts predictions of an active year

By Mike Lyons

1995 is supposed to be a very active year in the tropics. It would seem that the experts have hit the proverbial nail on the head.

It is only July yet we've already seen two tropical storms and one hurricane. Allison, a minimal hurricane, formed in early June in the Gulf of Mexico. Barry, a weak, poorly organized tropical storm, developed off the coast of Georgia in early July.

Last week we all watched as Chantal evolved in the Atlantic Ocean apparently taking aim at our coastline. Thank goodness she made that big turn to the North last weekend becoming what we call in the weather business a "fish storm."

All this activity in the tropics so early in the season is highly unusual. Historically, June and July are quiet months in the tropics. While the hurricane season technically begins on June 1, it really doesn't get going until August.

August, September and early October are the peak of the hurricane season. A pilot of the hurricane hunter airplanes that fly into hurricanes once told me that if he's not headed into a storm on Labor Day then it's an unusual year.

So if the 1995 hurricane season has already been busy you've got to wonder what August, September and early October will be like. If the experts are correct, it promises to be a busy period.

The good news is that you're probably better prepared for a hurricane now or next month because of our recent activity. I know the hardware and grocery stores where Chantal was threatening our area.

If you purchased plywood, extra water, batteries and non-perishable food you are one step closer to being ready for the next storm. After all, there's nothing we can do to prevent a storm from coming our way. All we can do is prepare. The old English proverb says it best: Hope for the best, but prepare for the worst.

Consider that a hurricane is the most survivable natural disaster. You never know, for example, when an earthquake is about to strike, you only have a few seconds, perhaps minutes, to prepare for a tornado but with a hurricane you practically have months to get ready for the storm.

One of the many things we learned from Hurricane Andrew is that residents of Dade County who had a complete hurricane plan were up and functioning within hours of the storm. Residents who didn't have a plan spent days and weeks after the storm trying to survive. A hurricane plan can make a world of difference.

Take a few minutes now to come up with your plan. What would you do if a hurricane was headed toward Florida? By answering that question now you'll be ready for the peak of the hurricane season.

It's been a long time since our area was hit by a big storm. We've been incredibly lucky this year, however, our luck may run out.

Arts and Crafts Day at the library...Local children enjoy the many children's programs offered at all the libraries in the Glades. New vigor in City of Pahokee

The Charette held in Pahokee early this year yielded a task force of energetic citizens who say they are determined to raise a new town "out of the dust."

The task force committee for housing have set goals to help the citizens upgrading the present housing, encouragement of development of new housing for middle income people, as well as more self owned low cost houses. (See announcement of meetings for present owners.)

The beautification committee has sponsored two "clean up/trash-buster" days. Paint has been donated and is being used to give downtown buildings a bright new look.

The economic development committee announces the following new businesses in Pahokee: The Big Post Boutique, Royals Furniture, Leo's Pizza Shop and a Subway shop. Contacts have been made with other businesses and are looking promising.

The right way if we have something to say is to say it plainly—not for conversion, but for such as may be waiting for our voice.

the task and found all kinds of outdated medications and ointments, you just wouldn't believe, or would you?

What you do have in your medicine cabinet is just as important as what you should not have. Consider the following:

1. Pain, fever and anti-inflammatory medicines. Acetaminophen (Tylenol, Datril, Panadol) products are recommended. They reduce pain and fever without damaging the intestinal tract. But they will not reduce swelling or inflammation.

Aspirin and ibuprofen (Advil, Nuprin, Medipren) relieve pain and inflammation, aspirin also relieves fever. At high doses however, it can lead to internal bleeding and ulcers. Those at greatest risk are the elderly. Always take aspirin or ibuprofen with food or liquid antacids, and never exceed the recommended dosages.

2. First-aid materials. Hydrogen peroxide for cleaning wounds. (Don't use alcohol, which is drying and more irritating), antibiotic creams/ointments, cotton swabs, gauze pads, tape, adhesive bandages, blunt scissors, and tweezers.

3. Skin protectors. For dry skin; over the counter vaginal cream for mild yeast infections;

Lamaze classes helped South Bay couple deal with birth of twins

By Brenda Bunting
Editor

Gone are the days when macho-men were forbidden to enter the delivery room while their wives were sweating and pushing to deliver a slippery bundle of joy.

These days, men are not only allowed inside those hallowed delivery rooms, they are encouraged to be a full partner in the struggle and awe of the birthing process.

Olivia Anthony and Ed Kerr of South Bay say they believe the learning process leading up to the birth of their twins last March helped them prepare for the big event and subsequent care of the children.

The couple talked it over during the early months of Olivia's pregnancy and decided to take the Lamaze classes at Glades General Hospital.

"I'm glad we did it," says Ed. "It helped me to help her, not just with the birth and pain, but it gave me a good education on how to take care of the kids."

Olivia gained 60 pounds during her pregnancy, some of which she said she is still carrying four months after the babies birth.

"That's another thing the Lamaze classes helped us deal with," said Ed, who said he was told to expect Olivia to gain some weight that she might later have to work to shed. Olivia had to have the twins, Edshard, a boy, and Edlexius, a girl, by Cesarean Section, but Ed said he stayed with Olivia and worked with her until it was decided the twins had to be taken by Cesarean. Edshard weighed 5 pounds, 12 ounces at birth and Edlexius topped the scales at 5 pounds, 14 ounces.

Now, four months and many sleepless nights later, the twins are alert and chubby and both parents share in their care. The twins have each gained almost 11 pounds.

Ed said he took two months off from his job as a statistician for the State of Florida's Department of Agriculture to help Olivia with the newborns.

Olivia, 38, is a teacher at Lake Shore Middle School. She also has two older boys, Dennis, 16 and Dekevious, 9. She said she learned through the Lamaze method of prepared childbirth how to deal with the possibility that the older boys might resent the new babies and feel threatened.

"You have to remember to let them be a part of everything and also give them some of your time," she said. It was never a problem. Both the boys love and help care for the twins, although daddy Ed says he is the primary caregiver, a fact Olivia doesn't dispute.

"We're glad we took the Lamaze classes," he said. "It has helped us be more attached to the children and to know what to expect even now."

Olivia adds "I highly recommend it to any expectant mother and her mate."

Lamaze is a method of prepared childbirth which was introduced throughout Europe in 1951 by Dr. Fernand Lamaze. The system, also referred to as the psycho prophylactic method of childbirth, was introduced in the United States in 1959.

Locally, the Childbirth Education Association of the Palm Beaches, Inc., sponsors the classes in the Glades. Sometimes it's taught at Glades General, at other times, Everglades Regional.

The next classes will be offered Sept. 11 at Everglades Regional Medical Center in Pahokee, according to Theresa Hooks, registrar. She recommends expectant parents sign up by the mother's fifth month of pregnancy.

Class series includes facts about the danger signs of a problem pregnancy, when to call the doctor, how to better care for your baby and yourself, what to expect during labor and delivery, the importance of early bonding between parents and their baby, facts about cesarean birth, newborn care, bottle or breast feeding information and how to access additional services which will help the mother and baby get off to a good start.

Can it be true?

"I'm calling in reference to today's paper (The Sun) July 20, 1995 in reference to the story on the front page about how citizens can access public records through the new P.A.S.S. system.

My first question is: Isn't that illegal to do that? Can anyone just walk into the courthouse and give you my name, pay a fee, and they can get information on me, whether or not I'm married, whether or not I sold a house, how much money I received for that house?

Isn't it illegal for someone to do that? If it is legal, I really don't think that is right or fair.

We would like to know who we can get in contact to talk to someone about this."

Editor's note: There is no cost for citizens to access the computer at the west county courthouse. The only cost is if you wish the clerks to print out a copy of the information you have accessed. In response to your question, yes, it is legal. Public documents, including marriage licenses, divorce documents, real estate transactions and much more are available to the general public. Many citizens are not aware of this and we are pleased to have given you this valuable information.

For more information, or to express your comments further, contact Barbara Milligan, west county branch manager at 996-4800.

Inspection station closed during rain

"What kind of rinky-dink company has the county got running this state emission control inspection station out here?

If it rains, it's closed. It's just open a few days a week. Why can't they make them build a building out here or shut the thing down until they can?"

Editor's note: I spoke with Robert Overton, the regional administrator for the Division of Motor Vehicles. He said the contract for emission control testing for Dade and Palm Beach County is held by Envirotech Technologies. He said when the original contract was bid, it was required that the successful bidder must build buildings for the testing sites in areas which were convenient to 90 percent of the citizens of the county.

Therefore, all the buildings were built on the coast. After the stations were built, it came to the attention of officials just how inconvenient this was for Western Palm Beach County residents so they required the contractor to provide a mobile unit for our area. That mobile unit comes to Belle Glade twice a week, on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"It's not a good arrangement, I agree," says Mr. Overton. "But, it's the best service we can offer at this time. I brought this to the attention of officials in Tallahassee and the next time the contract is awarded, the successful candidate will be required to build a permanent station in Belle Glade."

Mr. Overton said the contract is up for renewal in 1997. He also said the mobile unit is required to shut down during rain, because it is not safe to remain open at that time. He said it also occasionally has to shut down due to equipment failure.

Why are they searching cars?

"Yes, I live in South Bay and I'm all the time seeing the police having people pulled over and they're going through these cars and going through these people's luggage and stuff and digging around.

Are they doing that legally? Can you get in touch with them and find out if this is legal? Also, ask them what they're looking for.

Thank you."

South Bay Police Chief Charles Napier said he would need to know a specific incident to be able to respond to this caller's question. He said if a car search is done, it is done only if there is probable cause to do so. "We don't just indiscriminately search cars," he said.

Hastings announces funding for education in Florida

U.S. Congressman Alcee L. Hastings (D-Fl) announces that the Department of Education's Goals 2000 program has allocated the State of Florida $15,861,034 for its Blueprint 2000 education plan.

Goals 2000 provides incentive grants for schools, communities, and states to support their own effective approach to improve student achievement; improve teacher training and professional development; and encourage each state to develop challenging academic standards for students. It recognizes that there is no cookie-cutter approach to improving education, therefore, it supports state initiatives to raise academic achievement.

First year funds for Florida included grants to Collier County to establish a comprehensive elementary school program; St. Lucie County to provide assistance to high poverty schools; and Broward County for the establishment of an urban professional development center especially directed toward providing intensive training for teachers.

Congressman Hastings stated, "I am excited that the U.S. Department of Education has once again decided to fund Florida in our pursuit for better education. It is encouraging to witness the federal and state governments working together to insure the future of our children, for only with continued cooperation between the federal and state levels will we as a nation be able to improve upon our education system."

Tips on dealing with a mortgage broker or a mortgage lender

By Bob Milligan
Comptroller of Florida

The Finance Division of my office regularly receives complaints against mortgage brokers and lenders operating in Florida. However, many complaints can be avoided if a consumer understands the difference between a mortgage brokerage business and a mortgage lender.

The primary function of a mortgage broker is to act as a middle person between a borrower and the lending source for a loan. A mortgage broker receives a fee for his or her services from the borrower or in some instances from the lender. These fees are usually expressed by lenders as "points" which are a percentage of the loan amount. One point is equal to one percent of the loan amount.

Under Florida law, individual mortgage brokers must be associated with a licensed mortgage brokerage business. A mortgage broker first obtains a loan application from a prospective borrower and then submits the application to various lenders until the loan is accepted or rejected. While a mortgage broker is an excellent source for locating a viable lender, the brokerage business cannot fund a mortgage loan or guarantee your acceptance by the lender.

Since many consumers read the listings in local newspapers to find mortgage brokers or lenders, it is important that you understand the primary difference between the two.

When you go to a mortgage lender, you are dealing directly with the source of funds for your mortgage loan. That means the lender sets the parameters for qualifying for the loan and you are limited in your choices of loan products to those offered by the lender. Some licensed mortgage lenders act as brokers and will place your loan application with a different lender. This may occur if either the property or your qualifications do not conform to their guidelines. A mortgage broker may represent several lenders and therefore be able to offer you a wide variety of loan programs. Of course, you pay for this service via the mortgage broker's fee.

Consumers should also remember that the company names of mortgage lenders and brokerage companies may not clearly identify the type of business it is. For example, consider a hypothetical company named "ABC Funding, Inc." Is this a mortgage lender or mortgage brokerage business? Without further inquiry, it is impossible to tell.

And, since most interest rate and terms charts listed in newspapers don't identify the type of business placing the information, it is up to you to investigate further.

I suggest you start by calling one of my regional offices. A member of my Division of Finance staff can tell you what type of license the business holds, and whether there had been any disciplinary action taken against the license.

Also, under Florida law, whenever you deal with a mortgage lender or a mortgage brokerage business, they are required to provide you with a written agreement setting forth the estimated cost of the services to be provided. One such document is called a "good faith estimate." A mortgage brokerage agreement is required when you are dealing with a mortgage broker.

Since the mortgage brokerage agreement is a legally binding contract, you should read it carefully and understand all of it before signing. Make sure you understand each fee listed.

You should also read and understand all charges listed on the good faith estimate. You have the right to question any fees you do not understand or if fee are excessive.

Finally, if you feel you have a legitimate concern against a mortgage brokerage business or mortgage lender, or if you have questions, you may call the Comptroller's toll-free hotline at 1-800-848-3792.

Editors note: The POLICE NEWS in this newspaper lists arrests, not convictions, unless otherwise stated. Arrested persons who later are found not guilty or have had the charges against them dropped are welcome to let us know. We will confirm the information and print it.

Business is booming at Leo's Pizza

Business isn't just good at the new pizza place in Pahokee, it's booming, according to the owners.

Leo's Pizza at 115 North Lake Avenue has been open only a week and already the business has done a tremendous volume says co-owner Robert Grande.

"There's 6,000 people in Pahokee and I think we fed 4,000 of them last night," Mr. Grande said with a laugh.

Well, maybe not 4,000, but the tired businessman did admit they ran out of pizza dough their first night, July 20. "We weren't prepared for that many customers," he said. The name Leo's is an acronym for Law Enforcement Officers and the business is co-owned by three Pahokee police officers, Mr. Grande, Lt. Danny Jones and Officer Michael Madden.

"We wanted to do something for the town and this is something I know how to do," said Mr. Grande. His family has been in the pizza and Italian food business for almost 60 years in Florida and New York. "I've been in this all my life," he noted.

The three officers say they've had their eye on the corner spot across from First Community Bank, where the business is located for two years.

"We see good things happening here in town and hopefully this is just the start of it," Mr. Grande said.

The downtown area of Pahokee will be revamped in the next couple of years and Mr. Grande says he is looking forward to the time when more parking will be available. In the meantime, they have some parking on the side and take-out is offered or customers can eat outside at one of two picnic tables. Free delivery is offered to local businesses during the lunch hour.

Mr. Grande and Mr. Jones both work at Leo's in their spare time and have family working in the business and Mr. Madden, a bachelor, also helps. But, it won't be long, Mr. Grande says before they will have to hire some help.

Everything is homemade at Leo's except the sub rolls, which are freshly made by another business. In addition to pizzas, Leo's sells calzones, hot and cold subs, salads and dinners of spaghetti or lasagna.

Leo's Pizza is open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Thursday and 11 a.m. to midnight on Friday and Saturday nights. They are closed on Sunday.

To order Pahokee's "First New York Style Pizza," the owners say give them a call at 924-5002.

Business couldn't be better says the new owners of Leo's Pizza in Pahokee. Shown are co-owners Danny Jones and Robert Grande with his two-year-old son, Anthony. Not shown is co-owner Michael Madden.

started Banta weighing 215 pounds and lost 20 pounds in 2 months. Incredibly, I lost inches in all the right places."

In an interview with the President of Vita Source—Lester from consumers telling us about their wonderful results have been so positive and overwhelming, we guarantee Banta to work. The only difficulty we have is keeping our stores in stock. Banta is available at most K-Mart Pharmacies including:

New playground equipment being installed at Airport Park...The City of Belle Glade Public Works Department is shown depositing and spreading sand around some of the new playground equipment at Airport Park. The city purchased the equipment through a grant from the county. The city matched the $25,000 grant by providing the staff, equipment, sand and by demarking the area before the equipment was installed. Officials say County Commissioner Ken Foster was instrumental in helping the city acquire the grant. The new equipment includes a muscle bar, ladder, new swings, a balance beam and a ladder slide.

Kids should begin registration for Glades Tri-City Football league

Registration is now under way for the newly formed Glades Tri-City Football League. Under the direction of Commissioner Dan Bythwood and Captain Dan Callaway, the cities of Belle Glade, Pahokee, and South Bay have come together, with the Police Athletic League, (PAL) to form a youth football program that is scheduled to begin play Oct. 7.

The league's western division will consist of the South Bay Chiefs, the Glades Panthers and Pahokee's yet-to-be named team.

The Chiefs' 9-12 year olds and 13-15 year olds came away with the first and second place wins, respectively in the 1994 "Turkey Bowl", a national youth football tournament that was held in Jacksonville. Under the direction of Allen Davis, the Chiefs are looking forward to another great season.

The Panthers, under the direction of Mr. Bythwood, are also coming off a great season. The 1994 Panthers 9-12 year olds and 13-15 year olds are returning from a combined 18-2 record, with both teams just falling short in their respective Super Bowls in the Riviera Beach Police Athletic League, a league in which the Chiefs were also participants.

The Pahokee team will begin play under the direction of Ron Osborne. Mr. Osborne had previously conducted a flag football league for the youth of Pahokee. He also supervises a number of other youth sports activities in his position as recreation supervisor for the City of Pahokee.

Now, with the help of P.A.L., the Tri-City League has been formed. The Eastern Division will consist of Riviera Beach, West Palm Beach (Dyson Circle), Boynton Beach and Delray. There will also be teams visiting this area from locations such as Miami, Jacksonville, Ft. Lauderdale and Orlando. Also, various teams will be chosen to represent this area at the upcoming Thanksgiving and Christmas tournaments to be held in Philadelphia, Pa. and Hampton, Va.

Home games will be played at Pioneer Park and the times will be determined at a later date. Practice will begin July 31. Exhibition games will be played Sept. 30, at Pioneer Park and the regular season will begin Oct. 7. The registration fee is $50 and may be made payable to "Glades Youth Football."

Age restrictions are as follows: To play in the 9-12 age group a player cannot turn 13 before Nov. 1, 1995. To play in the 13-15 age group, a player cannot turn 16 before Nov. 1, 1995.

Registration forms may be obtained from the following persons: Dan Bythwood, 996-5785; Don Osborne, 924-2976; Allen Davis, 996-6751, extension 27; or Brant Bates, 992-1615.

Registration forms, birth certificates and fees must be in before youths will be allowed to participate.

Harley Mole and Mike Walker of Glade & Grove Supply in Belle Glade attended a training session on servicing Case IH 2100 Series Axial-Flow combines, held recently at the Case Corporation Service Training Center in Memphis, Tenn. The men were among nearly 3,000 North American Case IH and Case dealer service personnel who will participate in similar session this year.

Local Case IH Dealer representatives sharpen combine servicing skills

Harley Mole and Mike Walker of Glade & Grove Supply in Belle Glade, recently completed a one-week training program on servicing Case IH 2100 Series Axial-Flow combines.

The program is one of 23 different courses of technical study offered throughout the year for Case IH and Case service personnel at three dedicated training centers in North America. This year nearly 3,000 people will complete one or more of the week-long technical sessions, which combine hands-on and classroom training to make sure dealership technicians are familiar with the latest methods for fast, accurate diagnostics and service.

The session on combine productivity Mole and Walker attended at the Case Corporation Service Training Center in Memphis, Tenn., provides an overview of Case IH 2100 Series Axial-Flow combines, including training in pre-delivery service and setup, adjustments and troubleshooting for various combine functions, and a review of combine attachments. Attendees also review electrical, electronic and hydraulic systems on the Axial-Flow combines.

"We recognize a customer's need for total product support," said Arnie Oelkers, Case Corporation manager, North American service training. "Our training program helps Case IH dealers provide the best service possible in terms of technical proficiency and professionalism." Toward that end, Oelkers noted that skill-level profiles are developed at the start of each training session to determine the current level of technical product knowledge for every attendee. Among other things, the skill-level profile provides an evaluation of the technician's improvement and an opportunity for feedback to the dealership.

"Skill-level profiles show student progress and instill pride and confidence in the work they perform at the dealership," said Oelkers. "Our ultimate goal, of course, is improved customer service and product support. The results so far are very positive."

In addition to its Axial-Flow combines, Case offers a full line of agricultural equipment, including its award-winning Case IH MAGNUM™, MAXXUM®, general-purpose and four-wheel-drive tractors; Cotton Express® pickers; tillage, planting and seeding; hay and forage equipment. Service training sessions are offered for all key products.

Headquartered in Racine, Wis., Case Corporation is the second-largest maker of agricultural equipment in North America and the largest manufacturer and distributor of light and medium sized construction equipment in the world. Case products are sold in approximately 150 countries through a network of about 4,100 independent dealers and distributors.

GAMES FOR THE ROAD

Before you set off for your vacation, read these traveling games. If you play them, you'll have a little vacation while you travel to your vacation spot.

License Plate Word Game

Using the letters on the license plates of the cars you pass on the road, think of as many words as you can which start with that letter. If a license plate has more than one letter, think of words which use all the letters in the same order as they're printed on the plate.

Sight Search

Before you leave for your trip, make a list of things to look for while you drive along. Make some items and scenes common and some rare. Give a copy of the list to everyone. Check off each item as you see it.

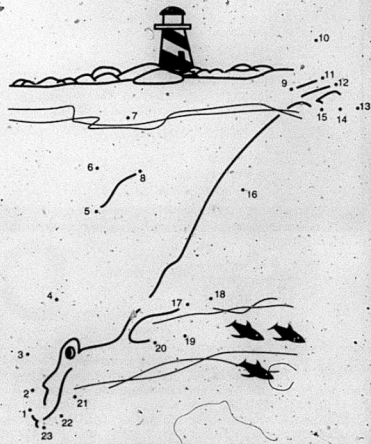

Treasure Chest

Choose a general category like fruits, vegetables, first names or animals. The first player says, "I looked in a treasure chest and found..." and then names an item which fits in the category and begins with the letter "A." The second player repeats this sentence, including the "A" item the first player has named, and adds a "B" item. Each player repeats what the previous players have said and adds an item starting with the next letter of the alphabet. Try to get through the whole alphabet doing this. Then try another category.

Dot-Te-Dot

What is a mammal but lives in the sea? Connect the dots to find the answer!

Military News

Navy, Seaman Recruit Charles D. Day, son of Louise W. Day of 649 SW 9th Street, Belle Glade, Fla., recently returned from a six-month overseas deployment aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Gettysburg, which included duty in the Persian Gulf off the coast near Iraq.

Day as one of 400 Sailors aboard the ship who completed the voyage as part of the naval forces assigned to the Middle East Force. Departing Mayport, Fla., in late October, Day and fellow shipmates traveled 33,025 miles and participated in multinational exercises with the South African Navy and air force.

Day and fellow shipmates also rescued survivors from the famous luxury liner Achille Lauro, which had caught fire and was sinking in the Indian Ocean. Nearly 1,000 survivors were rescued during the ordeal. Day was awarded the Humanitarian Service Medal for helping in the rescue effort.

Day's ship then continued across the Indian Ocean to the Arabian Sea and in the Persian Gulf.

In the Persian Gulf, Day's ship joined other U.S. naval forces, which have been preventing ships from transporting prohibited material to and from Iraq in violation of the international embargo. Day's ship was involved in stopping and searching ships heading to and from Iraq suspected of violating the embargo.

While spending 125 days at sea, Day also visited the Azores, Bahrain, Bermuda, Djibouti, Egypt, Italy, Kenya, Saudi Arabia, South Africa and the United Arab Emirates. While in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, Day's ship hosted Secretary of Defense William Perry as part of the commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the meeting between President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Saudi Arabian King Abdul Aziz aboard the cruiser USS Quincy.

Day's involvement in the deployment is an example of how U.S. Sailors are serving aboard ships, submarines and aircraft carriers around the world from the Persian Gulf and Western Pacific Ocean to the Mediterranean Sea. Whether projecting power or delivering humanitarian assistance from the sea, these highly trained naval forces provide a unique forward presence and crisis-response option, which can be withdrawn quickly when no longer needed.

He joined the Navy in June 1994.
